ROSA BONHEUR'S LION.

The Great French Artist's Pet Model Which Died In Her Arms.

Rosa Bonheur loves the animals she paints and is in turn adored by them. She showed her recent purchase, a magnificent lion, who purred and writhed like a gigantic cat when his owner fearlessly stroked his mighty head. Then, showing the head of a most superb specimen of the African lion transferred to canvas with startling realism, she tells the story of Nero. He was her first pet lion and was reputed untamably ferocious and lived for several years in the garden at By. At last one day Rosa Bonheur was about to travel and disposed of Nero to the Jardin des Plantes. She parted with him reluctantly, for he was a great pet and would greet her always with a peculiar little note of welcome.

When she returned from her wanderings, two years later, she went to see Nero and beheld a sad sight. The poor creature had not been so carefully tended as he was used to be at By. Ophthalmia had set in, and the splendid brute lay blind and ailing, unheeding the curious crowd that stared at him. Rosa Bonheur watched him for a moment and then called "Nero!" The effect was magical. The lion rose to his feet, uttered his accustomed note of welcome and sprang toward the well loved voice with such impetuosity that the shock against the bars sent the sightless brute rolling, stunned, back on the floor. The great artist took him back, soothed his last days with tendance and petting, and finally he died in her arms at the foot of the staircase at By, his huge paws clinging to his mistress, as if imploring her not to forsake him in his death struggle, and his last movement being a feeble attempt to lick the hands that held him with such infinite tenderness. "You see," said Rosa Bonheur as she meditatively ruffled her new lion's mane, "to be really beloved by wild beasts you must really love them."—Paris Letter in Philadelphia Telegraph.

A Japanese Recipe.

Fish is the chief article of diet of the Japanese. Dried and salted it is, with rice, the only food of the lower classes. But every one is fond of fish, and there are a thousand ways of dressing it daintily. Crabs are killed by making them swallow a bumper of sake, which is probably anything but pleasant to them, but gives them a very delicate taste. The spirit called shoyn, which is made of the fermented juices of several different kinds of grain, and which tastes like Liebig's extract diluted with brandy, seasons large fishes admirably, but generally the Japanese prefer to eat them raw, and they are not altogether in the wrong.

No hors d'œuvre can beat that obtained from the following recipe: "Take out the bones of a very fresh dorado or sole; cut the flesh into very small pieces—almost mince it, in fact; cut into thin slices a few fresh gherkins; put in a pickle dish a series of layers of chopped fish and gherkins; add salt and pepper to each layer; sprinkle over the whole a little vinegar and the juice of a lemon; let the dish stand for a few hours before serving." Try this recipe, and you will see.—Harper's Weekly.

How Indeed?

"Won't you hand me the nutcracker, please, my dear?" blandly remarked Mr. Fewsmith to his wife at the dinner table.

"With pleasure," was the answer, "but I am sorry to see you so addicted to the nut eating habit. I have heard that Darwin or some other great man has said that nuts were never intended for human consumption because they are so well protected in their natural covering; that they are intended by nature only for germination."

"What I should like to know," responded Fewsmith, with his best company manner, "is how they can be more appropriate for the German nation than for free and independent Americans."—New York Tribune.

London Culture.

Culture is declared by London fashionables as the reverse of smart. This one would gather from the three following remarks—the first from a middle aged lady—quoted by a weekly journal:

"It's the dream of my life to go to Venice. Fancy floating about in a lagoon! And the Viennese are so charming, too, I believe!"

A pretty girl exclaimed: "Oh, yes, the 'Heavenly Twins.' I must get it. I love dear George Eliot."

And a young man said quite seriously: "An Ibsenite: No, I'm in the army."—Exchange.

The British Empire.

Roughly speaking, the British empire extends over one continent, 100 peninsulas, 500 promontories, 1,000 lakes, 2,000 rivers and 10,000 islands. The Assyrian empire was not so wealthy. The Roman empire was not so populous. The Persian empire was not so extensive. The Spanish empire was not so powerful.—Yankee Blade.

A Crucial Test.

"Well, Henri, how does the watch go that grandpa gave you?"

"Oh, papa, it ought to go very well. I took it to school, and all my playmates have been winding it up."—Boeage.

INTELLECT AND STATURE.

Criminals and Lunatics Have Less Than Average Height and Weight.

The influence of different occupations on adults, of town and country life, of intellectual and physical exercises and of athletics is well brought out by anthropometric inquiry. Measurements extending over 27 successive years have been made at the school of the Society of Friends at York. Friends are largely a commercial and therefore a town dwelling class, and yet there is a slight improvement shown in stature and a very decided improvement shown in weight in the boys attending this school in later years. The beneficial action of the factory acts, of higher wages, cheaper and better food and clothing and improved sanitary surroundings of the working classes in recent years, is brought out by the measurements.

On the other hand, observations show that school life under favorable conditions impedes the physical development of the children, and this is most marked in charity schools. Measurements made at the Duke of York's school at Chelsea show that the children who are the sons of soldiers, and therefore of a class selected for physical fitness, were until recently very inferior in stature and weight to boys of their own class living in their own homes. A similar falling off has prevailed at the Blue Coat school among boys belonging to a higher class of society in consequence of bad sanitary arrangements and probable faults in the feeding and discipline of the inmates. The average stature of boys of different classes of the community varies between the best nurtured boys in our public schools and the worst nurtured class in our industrial schools to the extent of about seven inches in boys of the age of 14 years.

A fact of rather peculiar nature has also been brought to light by anthropometry—namely, that girls from 11 to 14 years are taller and heavier than boys of corresponding ages. The average height of Scotch agricultural laborers (Galloway) is 5 feet 10.5 inches; fellows of the Royal society, 5 feet 9.76 inches; athletes, 5 feet 8.34 inches; lunatics, 5 feet 5.70 inches; criminals, 5 feet 5.60 inches; Herefordshire laborers, 5 feet 5.35 inches and idiots and imbeciles 5 feet 4.84 inches. When compared with the general population, lunatics show a deficiency of nearly two inches in stature and 10 pounds in weight, while criminals are two inches shorter and 18 pounds lighter, besides showing a marked deficiency of physical as well as mental stamina —Newcastle (England) Chronicle.

A Nest Building Fish.

One of the queerest denizens of the deep, and one which could very properly be called an ichthyological wonder, is the gouramis, the famous nest building fish of the oriental seas. These fish are very plentiful in the waters of Cochin China, Java, Sumatra and Borneo. At the breeding they pair off like birds, and selecting a favorable spot in shallow water among aquatic plants and grasses build large spherical nests of floating weeds and plaster them over with mud. The broad, flat fins used in this last operation are attached to the abdomen and are wholly different from anything in the fin line known to naturalists. The full grown female gouramis is 6 feet long and weighs 110 pounds. The eggs of this queer fish, which are deposited in the mud plastered nest, number from 800 to 1,000.—St. Louis Republic.

A Shrewd Preacher.

A preacher advocating the support of a charitable object prefaced the circulation of the boxes with this address:

"From the great sympathy I have witnessed in your countenances, there is only one thing I am afraid of—that some of you may feel inclined to give too much. Now, it is my duty to inform you that justice should always be a prior virtue to generosity, therefore I wish to have it thoroughly understood that no person will think of putting anything into the box who cannot pay his debts."

The result was an overflowing collection.—London Tit-Bits.

Jack Tar and His Money.

Sailors are almost the only class of workingmen who have considerable sums of money to spend on payday. A jolly tar was buying a watch. The price was $40. Jack bought the watch without any higgling and carelessly threw down a $20 bill. The jeweler pointed out the deficiency.

"Oh!" was the remark. "I didn't know I had that. I'm so much in." And he fished another bill out of a greasy wallet and threw it on the showcase. It was a $50 bill.—Jewelers' Circular.

Method In His Madness.

Mrs. Wickwire—What is the use of standing there and calling the stove names? That won't make the fire burn any better.

Mr. Wickwire—I thought that maybe if I could insult the blamed thing it would get hot about it.—Indianapolis Journal.

Sponge Cake.

"Do you call this sponge cake? Why, it's as hard as can be."

"Yes, mum. That's the way a sponge is before it's wet. Soak it in your tea, mum."—London Punch.

A Canadian Sunday.

A country town of a Sunday afternoon in Canada is the quietest of existing things. Everything in it seems lifeless. Not a sound is heard from any side. One's own cough startles one in the very streets. Two cows slowly wend their way homeward. An overripe apple falls heavily in an unkempt front garden. Even these signs of semilife are a relief. Rows of youths, all dressed in somber black, and all smoking cigars fearfully, if not wonderfully, made, lean against the walls of the inn at the corner or stand in silent knots about the horse gnawed "hitching post."

I enter the inn. It is chilly, and in the common room which serves many purposes a battered stove, lacking two-thirds of its mica, radiates a dry and suffocating heat.

On deal chairs, mostly tipped up, sit the youths, but just now lounging without. They say nothing, only sit and smoke and spit—how they spit! They themselves are probably all unconscious of the incessant salivary sharpshooting, but I—I sit in terror, like a nervous woman dreading the pistol shots on the stage. Soon church bells begin to clang. None heeds them, nor are they over inviting. One is cracked, they are not in harmony, and they seem to be ringing a race, in which the hindmost is to win.

In the space of about an hour, however, the youths begin to move, as if with the feeling that at last will come a small relief from the awful ennui which they cannot express. Church is coming out.—Blackwood's Magazine.

A Much Sought After Contributor.

"It used to be," remarked a successful business man, with some literary taste and learning, "that I wrote imaginative articles for the leading magazines of the country."

"When you were young, I suppose," commented his companion.

"Yes; much younger than I am now."

"Were they accepted?"

"Never, but I presume with age and larger experience and riper knowledge one's style and matter improves, and the work he does is far more meritorious."

His companion showed an interest not before observable.

"You don't mean," he asked, "that you send anything to them now that is acceptable?"

"Oh, yes," he replied promptly, "there isn't a magazine in the country that isn't glad to print my articles now, and some of them even solicit them. I have something in some of them every month."

"I have never noticed them" (more surprised than ever). "Are they signed?"

"Yes, by the firm's name. You will find them in the advertising pages."—London Million.

Sacred Cats.

The ancient Egyptians worshiped the goddess Sechet, a creature with a human body and a cat's head. Sechet's shrine was at the once famous city of Bubastis. Hither an average of 700,000 devotees resorted annually, each district delegation taking all the dead cats which had "quitted the sphere of action" in their respective localities during the year. These dead cats, all of which were carefully wrapped and embalmed, were buried at the celebrated "cat cemetery," on the plains of Zakazik, that being the place where the image of Sechet was set up. One of the greatest curiosities of present day Egypt is the catacombs, where the remains of these countless thousands of cats are to be seen, each wrapped in linen and sealed up in a red earthenware jar.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

An Unsatisfactory Service.

"What is this, please?" queried a dejected boarder as he cautiously, with the tip of his knife, turned over a sorry remnant of fowl on his plate.

"That," replied the landlady haughtily, "is duck—redhead duck, Mr. Gibson—and let me add it is considered a great delicacy here. I suppose you were not familiar with it when you resided at Sawpits."

"Oh, I knew it was duck, madam, but I couldn't tell the color of its head. It's difficult to determine one extremity from another, and I have nothing but the webbed feet of the beast here."—New York Herald.

Rhymes For Timbuctoo.

Timbuctoo is chiefly interesting as the subject of verses submitted for a prize offered many years ago by Punch for rhymes to that curious name. One of the verses was:

If I were a cassowary
On the plains of Timbuctoo,
I would eat a missionary,
Skin and bones and hymnbook too.

Another, with a more perfect rhyme, ran thus:

As I was hunting on the plains
All on the plains of Timbuctoo,
A buck was all I got for my pains,
And he was a slim buck too.
—Philadelphia Ledger.

Honolulu.

It is said that Honolulu was the first community in the world to make practical use of the telephone. Modern science advances very slowly in Honolulu generally, but when that community heard of the telephone it adopted it as one man. The people still eat raw fish and use their fingers in carrying it to the mouths, but they use more telephones in proportion to population than New York does.—Chicago Tribune.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Echoes of Senator Hill's Speech—Infamous Statement of Breckenridge's Attorney.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Senatorial oratory has had full swing this week and will continue to have for four hours each day the Senate is in session as long as the present agreement between the Democrats and Republicans holds good—for probably a fortnight more anyway. The echoes of Senator Hill's speech are still heard, and will continue to be heard for some time. While his speech has only been publicly endorsed by one Senator of his party—Brice of Ohio, —there are good reasons for saying that it is endorsed privately by others among them. There is no longer any doubt that Senator Hill intends to aid in defeating the tariff bill, unless his party associates will consent to modify it to an extent that would make it a new measure, and there are no present indications that they will do that.

Senator Hill's position on the tariff has brought up an old but never decided question—ought a Senator to vote in accordance with the sentiment of a majority of his party, or with that of the State he represents? If the first, Senator Hill has committed a political crime; if the last, his opposition to a majority of his party is justified by undisputed facts. The Southern Democrats are as much down on Senator Hill as they are on President Cleveland, and many of them do not hesitate to charge both of them with acting solely in the interest of the State of New York, one on the tariff, the other on finance, without regard to the interests of their party or of other sections.

The closing scenes of the Pollard-Breckenridge trial were at times highly dramatic. Ex-Congressman Phil. Thompson of Kentucky, one of Breckenridge's lawyers, in the course of a speech teeming with blackguardism, made probably the most infamous statement ever made by a respectable lawyer in court when he said that he did not blame a girl for preferring to be the mistress of a man of prominence who could aid her in maintaining a good social position rather than be the wife of a poor Kentucky farmer.

Indications are not lacking that the action of the Democratic House caucus this week in declaring in favor of the repeal of the tax on State Bank currency was more to satisfy constituents than with any idea that the repeal can possibly be accomplished in the manner proposed—as a rider to another bill. There is little doubt that a square proposition for unconditional repeal would be voted down in the House. The largest claim made by those who have polled the House is 129 votes in favor of unconditional repeal. The caucus which adopted the repeal resolution was attended by only 102 of the 218 Democratic members of the House, and nearly all of them were from the West and South, and one of the former—Bryan of Nebraska—told the caucus that his State was opposed to the issue of money in any other way than under Federal supervision and that he should vote against the repeal. The Republicans will to a man vote against repeal and the Populists will probably do the same.

It may be that the silver men will vote for Representative Meyer's combination bill, authorizing an unlimited issue of bonds and the coinage of the seigniorage, but they haven't said that they would. Indeed, they appear to be perfectly indifferent towards the bill in its present shape. It will be a very difficult task to get a bill authorizing the issue of bonds through the House, no matter what other project or projects may be combined with it.

It is to be regretted that the Senate failed to vote, as had been expected, on Senator Harris' proposition to meet daily at 11 o'clock and to remain in session until 6 o'clock, the tariff bill to be taken up at noon each day. The vote would have been a valuable straw in determining what is to be the final fate of the bill, as it was generally understood that those who are opposed to the bill would have voted against increasing the time devoted to it. It turned out, however, that neither side was anxious to take a test vote at this time and when the opponents of the bill proposed as a compromise, that the Senate continue to meet at noon, but that the tariff bill be taken up at 1 o'clock instead of at 2 o'clock, and that its consideration be continued until 5 o'clock each day, it was eagerly accepted by the friends of the bill. It is believed that the compromise was offered by the Republicans at the request of Democratic Senators who are inclined to oppose the bill, but are not yet ready to publicly commit themselves against it.

If Mexico would only look at the matter through our spectacles Senator Wolcott's resolution, this week adopted by the Senate, requesting the President to open negotiations with Mexico, with a view of obtaining permission to coin Mexican silver dollars at United States mints, for export to Asia, would doubtless result in a silver boom, but it would be just as well to await Mexico's answer before getting gay over the prospect.

The struggle of the Democrats in the House to get and maintain a voting quorum is so near continuous that it has grown very monotonous and wearisome. The country has had a regular weekly dose of it for some time past and this week has been no exception to what has come to be regarded as a regular programme.

A Boy's Essay on Pants.

A boy in the Huichica school has been suspended for reading the following essay on pants: "Pants are made for men and men for pants. When a woman pants for a man and a man pants for a woman they are a pair of pants. Such pants don't last. Pants are like molasses; they are thinner in hot weather and are thicker in cold. The man in the moon changes his pants during the eclipse. Don't you go to the pantry for pants, you might be mistaken. Men are often mistaken in pants. Such mistakes make breeches of promise. There has been discussion as to whether pants are singular or plural. Seems to us when men wear pants they are plural and when they don't wear pants it is singular. Men go on a tear in their pants and it is all right, but when the pants go on a tear it's all wrong."—Ex.

Lost a Leg

Blood Poisoned by a Slight Accident

But Hood's Sarsaparilla Purified, and Restored Health.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—Three years ago a file penetrated one of my legs just above the knee. I was some distance from a doctor and the wound was not properly dressed. Failing to receive the necessary treatment, set in. I became so weak and my system so much run down that I could not turn in bed or help myself in any way. After seventeen months' confinement, my wife took me to Walla Walla, Wash. Here the surgeons amputated my leg half way between the knee and the hip. Following this my health improved slightly but shortly gatherings began to form on my body and caused me much pain and suffering. Several remedies were tried but did not give me relief. Finally Hood's Sarsaparilla was recommended and from the first. Gradually I have improved; I am growing stronger and the painful gatherings have disappeared and I am about cured of my

Blood Poisoning

John B. Skinner, the well-known Western Addition druggist of San Francisco, was the guest of his father last Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Skinner is a Sonoma boy and his many friends in this valley will be pleased to hear that he is building up a prosperous business in the metropolis. Johnny, we wish you continued success.

Messrs. Foerstler & Legh, the enterprising coopers of Santa Rosa, are erecting a large cooperage shop in Healdsburg as a branch of their Santa Rosa establishment. This firm is securing all the work in Sonoma county, as their cooperage is the best and their prices so low that no one can compete with them. They have almost the entire cooperage business of Sonoma Valley at the present time owing to their ability to turn out superior work at less than San Francisco prices. We recommend this firm to the wine and brandy makers of Sonoma Valley.

John Ludeman, the newly-elected Trustee, has underwent a change of heart on the disincorporation proposition. The gentleman visited our sanctum one day this week and stated that he is not now in favor of any such a move. He furthermore stated that he intends to work for the best interests of the people of Sonoma. He is also in favor of public progress and improvement. Bully for you, John. We assure you of the hearty co-operation of the INDEX-TRIBUNE in any effort made to benefit the people who have called upon you to help to manage the affairs of the town for the next four years.

My wife was confined to her bed for over two months with a very severe attack of rheumatism. CITY TRUSTEES.

Special Meeting—Result of the Late Municipal Election Declared.

The Board of Trustees met in special session last Monday for the purpose of declaring the result of the late municipal election.

Only three of the five members were present, to-wit: Trustees Seipp, Trudgen and Litzius.

Clerk Breitenbach laid before the Board the returns of the late local election. After a minute examination of the poll list and tally sheets by the Board Trustee Seipp offered the following resolution:

Resolved, That the following-named candidates for city officers have received a majority of all the votes cast for the particular office for which they were candidates, and that they are and each of them is hereby declared elected to such office as follows, to-wit: Virgilio Bulotti, Trustee; John Ludeman, Trustee; Julius E. Poppe, Trustee; G. H. H. Cornelius, Treasurer; F. Breitenbach, Clerk and Assessor; Eugene Robin, Marshal and Collector. Be it further

Resolved, That the City Clerk give notice to each of the elected candidates of his election and that he is requested by law to qualify within ten days after receiving such notice.

On motion of Trustee Litzius the resolutions were adopted.

John Ludeman, Julius E. Poppe and Eugene Robin being present the Clerk informed each of his election and of the requirements expressed in the foregoing resolution, and thereupon each of the newly-elected officers waived further notice. The Board then adjourned.

Sudden Death.

Mrs. Regina Reibli, widow of the late M. Reibli, died very suddenly at her home a few miles east of Sonoma last Tuesday evening about six o'clock. The cause of death was heart disease. Mrs. Reibli, who was a large, healthy-looking woman, had been complaining of not feeling well for a week or ten days, but did not take to her bed until a short time before she died. She was the mother of a large family, the youngest of the children being thirteen years of age. Mrs. Jos. Keechler is one of the daughters. The deceased was aged 54 years and 9 months and was a native of Switzerland. The funeral took place Thursday and was largely attended.

Hay and Grain Crop.

The hay and grain crop of Sonoma Valley will turn out better than was anticipated two or three weeks ago, and generally speaking both will be fair even though not another drop of rain falls this season. Barley on the Senator Jones ranch, of which there is several thousand acres, has already commenced to head out. The hay fields in the vicinity of El Verano will turn out a fine yield. Hay and grain will command high figures this year and as the fruit crop never looked more promising the Sonoma Valley farmer has bright prospects before him in the way of good crops and fair prices.

Trout Fishing.

Some fine strings of trout have been caught in Sonoma Creek and its mountain tributaries the past week. Owing to the use of dynamite by unprincipled parties few fish have been caught in the large holes in many of the streams. So effective has been the destruction in some instances that not even a tadpole, waterdog or living thing in many of the deep pools have escaped annihilation. The perpetrators ought to be caught and made an example of.

New Board of City Trustees.

The new Board of City Trustees will take their seats on the first Wednesday of next month. The Board is now composed of S. Schocken and Henry Seipp (hold overs) and J. E. Poppe, V. Bulotti and John Ludeman. So far no special policy has been mapped out by the new Board, but it is said that all the members favor a fifty cent levy this year and the enforcement of the pound ordinance.

A Gift Worthily Bestowed.

The late Margaret Weldschott, who died in this place a few weeks ago, just previous to her death deeded her home to Mrs. Agnes Carr. The gift was most worthily bestowed as Mr. and Mrs. Carr, who are poor, but kind and deserving people, had taken good care of the old lady for a number of years preceding her death.

One of the necessities of the moment is not so much to dress expensively as to be arrayed in a certain style, which denotes that the wearer really knows what are best fashions, and to be, in fact, rather ahead of them.

A Chinaman who lately returned from a trip to Europe treated his countrymen to the following description of the piano: "The Europeans keep a large four-legged beast which they can make to sing at will. A man, or more frequently a woman, or even a feeble girl, sits down in front of the animal and steps on its tail, while at the same time striking its white teeth with his or her fingers, when the creature begins to sing. The singing, though much louder than a bird's, is pleasant to listen to. The beast does not bite, nor does it move, though it is not tied up."

Keep browned flour on hand for thickening stews, gravies, sauces and soups. It gives a much better flavor than is obtained from raw flour. Brown it by scattering evenly over a large flat baking pan and stirring often until it is pale brown.

Every article of food should be kept covered until it appears on the table. Milk and butter, for instance, should be kept in air-tight vessels and kept covered. They both take up every odor flying in the air and are positively harmful to take into the stomach after standing uncovered for an hour or two, for not only odors, but the animalculæ that fill the air are attracted to milk and butter.

He cannot be an unhappy man who has the love and smile of woman to accompany him in every department of life. The world may look dark and cheerless without, enemies may gather in his path, but when he returns to the fireside and feels the tender love of woman he forgets his cares and troubles and is a comparatively happy man. He is but half prepared for the journey of life who does not take with him that friend who will forsake him in no emergency, who will divide his sorrows, increase his joys and throw sunshine amid the darkest scenes.

Some time ago the London papers contained alarming articles to the effect that a child had been poisoned by eating American apples. After a careful investigation the Government analyist has been able to find no poison whatever, and a piece of the Baldwin apple which is alleged to have poisoned the child was fed to a mouse, which suffered in no way. It is not improbable that these tales of the dangers which were said to threaten those who ate fruit from orchards which had been sprayed with arsenites against the codlin-moth were invented by interested dealers in order to depress the price of apples from this country.

M. E. CHURCH CONCERT.

A very large and enthusiastic audience assembled to witness the attractive programme presented by the ladies of the M. E. Church at Union Hall last Tuesday evening. Promptly at 8 o'clock the curtain was raised and the first number, a piano duet, was well rendered by Misses Anna Wadsworth and Cecilia Granice. The second number, "Poppleton's Predicaments," a farce in one act elicited much applause. All the characters were well sustained, especially that of "Tom," the man servant, represented by Mr. J. P. Weems. After the farce came a vocal solo by Mrs. Emparan who sang a beautiful Spanish song. This brought forth much applause from the many admirers of this charming lady. Mrs. Emparan responded to an encore. The programme concluded with singing by the Ladies Choral Society which was a rare treat and was greatly enjoyed by all who were present. All the ladies have voices of unusual sweetness, and it is hoped that our people will have an opportunity to hear them soon again. After the programme ice cream, coffee and cake were served from the different booths. The hall was well lighted and the stage prettily decorated. The affair was pronounced a social and financial success.

Miss Annie Pemberton has returned to Sonoma from an extended visit with relatives in the East.

Nearly one-fifth of the human race die from consumption or some other form of pulmonary disease.

Miss Ora Lawrence is home from the Normal School at San Jose. She will spend her short vacation with her mother at Locust Grove.

Pique blazers, cut short and full in the back, button only once on the bust, are rounded below to show a vest or shirt, and have a notched collar stitched near the edge. Curved slit pockets are on the sides.

The rain that produced the flood fell for forty days and forty nights, and after it ceased it was forty days before Noah opened the ark. Moses was forty days on the mountain fasting, and the spies spent forty days investigating matters in Canaan before making their report. Elijah fasted forty days in the wilderness, and Jonah gave the people of Nineveh forty days in which to repent. The forty days fast of Jesus is known to all readers of the New Testament.

About four times a year, says a satin-skinned woman, I take a dose of sulphur, cream of tartar and syrup for three mornings alternately. This brimstone opens everything—pores of the skin, etc.—promotes perspiration and thins and purifies the blood. Perfect health must precede the beauty of the face. There are two cures almost positive and absolutely safe—simple diet, moderate eating and daily bathing.

Never delay in answering letters or returning books.

Miss Eugenie Bergess of the Bay City was a guest at the Stevenot residence last Sunday.

Mustard and hot water in a foot bath will cure a nervous headache and induce sleep.

Peter Keil and Jos. Ryan returned last Sunday evening from a several days sojourn in San Francisco.

Never talk when others are singing or doing anything else for your amusement, and never, the instant they have finished, begin to talk on a different topic.

Miss Lola Haraszthy returned home last Saturday evening after a week's visit with relatives and friends in the metropolis.

Puffiness under the eyes and dark circles can be removed by persistent massage and the application of certain prepared creams. The wrinkles about the eyes are simple foes to vanquish, but the lines around the mouth require a harder fight. It must not be expected that the disfiguring lines that have been so long in coming will hide themselves away in a night, but perseverance in massage, hot water treatment and occasional steamings will work wonders.

SONOMA INDEX - TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, SATURDAY, APRIL 21, 1894.

A CHLOROFORM EXPERIMENT.

Why the Result Was Distinctly Out of Proportion to the Dose.

"Your notice of the discovery of chloroform in 1847 recalls a curious experience in my Cambridge undergraduate life. One evening in January, 1851, I went into a chemist's shop and ordered some photographic chemicals to be sent to my rooms hard by, I was lodging on the Parade. Seeing an ounce bottle of chloroform on the counter I bought it out of curiosity and took it away with me, leaving the chemicals to follow. In my own rooms, seated in an armchair, I put four drops on my handkerchief, and carefully placing the bottle on the table some distance from me I sniffed the handkerchief.

"A pleasant sensation and a singing in my ears was the only result. So, shortly afterward, I counted out eight drops and acted as before. The next thing I remember is finding myself on the floor on my back, my dress undone, my face, etc., dripping with cold water and hearing a voice. 'He's coming to, I do believe.' Yes, it was so. I came to, after having been unconscious 2½ hours. Next day my doctor, when out with the foxhounds, was greeted with: 'Hello, doctor! So you raised a man from the dead last night?' 'You may well say that,' was the reply, 'for I had given up all hopes.'

"I was very puzzled to account for the effect of my carefully measured dose. All I could gather from the servant was that she brought me up a parcel from the chemist, and seeing me asleep tried to wake me; then, finding I was dead, ran down into the shop calling out, 'Mr. M. is dead.' Two Trinity men were in the shop. One went on to the 6 p. m. chapel, telling every one of my sudden death. The other, after a glance at me, kindly called in Dr. C. Some time afterward the mystery was cleared up.

"The 'slavey' gave warning, and the day she left she made the following confession:

"'You remember that night you was nearly dead, sir? Well, you know, sir, I thought you had fainted, and I see the bottle on the table and thought it was salts, so I took out the stopper and held it to your nose, but as it didn't do no good I poured a lot of it out into my hand and rubbed it all over your nose and mouth.'

"I told my doctor the story. He replied, 'Well, my dear fellow, all I can say is this, if you ever have to undergo an operation, tell your family doctor that you can take chloroform.' Thank God, that necessity has never arisen."—London News.

Leap Year Privileges.

Why is it that ladies are permitted to propose in leap year? Here is the answer:

It appears that in the year 1288 a statute was published by the Scotch parliament ordaining that during the reign of "Her Maist Blessit Mejestie Margaret" every maiden and lady of high and low estate should have liberty to speak to the man she liked. If he refused to take her to be his wife, she should have the privilege of fining him £100 or less, according to his estate, unless he could make it appear that he was betrothed to another woman, in which case he would be free to refuse. After the death of Margaret the women of Scotland became clamorous for their privileges, and to appease them another act of parliament allowing them to propose every fourth year was passed.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Comfort to Each Other.

A delicious story of "damnable iteration" comes by way of the English parish curate, a route which good stories often take. He was visiting a poor old couple who were sitting together over the fire. The old man was very grumbling and discontented. The curate said that "he ought to be more grateful to God for having preserved them through such a length of years to be a comfort to each other." "Now, look here, mister," blurted out the old man, "she sits ere and I sits theere from morning till night all the blessed day long, till I 'ates the very sight of her."—New York Times.

The Mississippi.

Generally speaking, the slope of rivers flowing into the Mississippi from the east is, on the average, about three inches per mile. Those entering it from the west have an average descent of about six inches per mile. The average descent per mile of the Missouri after it leaves the mountains is reckoned about a foot; the Des Moines, from its source to its conjunction with the Mississippi, about 7.3 inches. The entire length of the Ohio shows a fall of even five inches. The Mississippi, from the mouth of the Ohio to the gulf, has a fall of about 2½ inches.—Boston Globe.

The Helvetian Ladies.

The most celebrated warlike women among the ancients, apart from the fabled amazons, were the Helvetian ladies. Cæsar praises highly their military achievements. In more than one instance the legions of Rome turned their backs on the fair ones of Switzerland. During the Crusades women of rank performed the most romantic and chivalrous deeds, dying either side by side of their lovers and husbands.—New York Journal.

If you want a good roast or steak go to Weyl's meat market.

Presentiments.

"Of course I believe in presentiments," said Bud Harkins. "One of the most vivid things that ever occurred to me in that way happened about a year ago. I was in New Mexico, and my wife and baby were in Toledo. One night I was lying in bed and had not yet gone to sleep, when a mist seemed to envelop the room, and out from the mist came a picture of my wife leaning over the baby, and to my horror the child was dead.

"I tried to shake off the idea, but I could not. It haunted me all that night and kept me from doing any work the next day. There was no telegraph station from which I could telegraph, and if there had been it would have done no good. I knew just as well as though I had been present that the child was dead. I left the night after my vision for home, telegraphing at the earliest possible opportunity.

"All the way to Chicago I had a feeling that I should not take the first train to Toledo; that there would be an accident, and when I reached the city I was actually relieved to find that we had missed connection. I telegraphed to my wife, and she answered fully there."

A chorus of voices asked, "Had it happened, just as in the vision?"

"Happened? I wasn't talking about happenings. Nothing had happened. I was only talking about presentiments, and I believe in them because I have had them."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Knocked Out by a Sauerkraut Explosion.

A German living on Potato mountain made a barrel of sauerkraut and thought to preserve the aroma of the fermented cabbage in all of its freshness by driving both heads of the barrel tight and nailing down the bung. Finally he decided that his kraut was about ripe and went to the cellar to examine it. He had hardly entered the cellar when his family was startled by a terrific explosion. Something struck the floor beneath them hard enough to loosen the boards, and the air was filled with the flavor of newly opened kraut.

The man's wife hurried to the cellar, where she found her husband lying on the floor, his whiskers, hair, clothing and the ceiling of the cellar filled with shreds of cabbage, while the barrel was in pieces and scattered about the room. The man was unconscious, but recovered soon after being carried up stairs. He stated that as soon as he had knocked the top hoop from the barrel the cask exploded with the force of a steam boiler, driving him against the ceiling so hard that the boards were loosened. The fermentation had caused gas to generate, and when he agitated the stuff by driving the hoop it let go with the force of an ignited barrel of gunpowder.—Oil City Derrick.

The Barometer of the Senate.

The movements of the press gallery overlooking the senate chamber are doubtless the safest barometer of the importance of the doings on the floor below. If the gallery seats are well taken up, something is surely transpiring in the chamber that is worth watching. If they are empty, the proceedings are apt to possess no interest. The public may be mistaken, and the visitors' galleries may be overflowing, but the curiosity seekers do not possess the delicate instinct of foretelling impending crises, and if the press gallery be empty, though expectancy be written on every face that peers down from the crowded balconies, no gladiatorial feats of competing oratory need be looked for, and disappointment will overtake him who disregards the signs.—Washington Post.

An Old Colonial Horror.

At Freehold, N. J., a negro was once executed in a manner that would have made the torturers of the middle ages blush with envy. An old document in the clerk's office at that place tells the tale: "Therefore the court doth judge that thou, the said Cæsar, shall return to the place from whence thou camest, and from thence to the place of execution, where thy right hand shall be cut off and burned before thy eyes. Then thou shalt be hanged by the neck till thou art dead, dead, dead. Then thy body shall be cut down and burned to ashes in a fire kindled for that purpose, and may the Lord have mercy on thy soul."

The Pilgrims.

Hon. William F. Davis of Plymouth, while delivering an address in Boston, entitled "Who Were the Pilgrims?" said: "The name 'Pilgrim' was suggested by a casual remark of Governor William Bradford in his history, when, in speaking of the sorrow felt by the Plymouth colony at leaving Leyden he said, 'But they knew they were pilgrims and looked not on such things.' It was used for the first time by Judge John Davis in his ode, 'Sons of Renowned Sires,' written for the celebration of the landing in 1792."—Philadelphia Record.
